Qualifications

Please describe your relevant analytical skills.

The benefits of attending a Tier One University, such as the University of Texas, have been a rewarding learning experience with a diverse disciplinary. I have learned the importance of research and the foundations of critical data and literature analysis. As a second year, I had the opportunity to work with the Adolescent Health and Development Lab (AHDL) within the Psychology Department at the University. I began as a data gather by conducting qualitative data collection by facilitating focus groups, individual interviews, and participant tracking of six month intervals. During the year of my research assistantship, I also learned data entry and analyzing important traits of the women in our body image concern study. After my experience in working in the AHDL, I began my own study to assess the the knowledge of the Fisher v. The University of Texas at Austin SCOTUS (Supreme Court of the United States) case on campus and if there was a need to educate students based on their own education history. During this time, I found that many students were not aware of the Fisher v. UT case and had little interest in the matter of race, or affirmative action, in the use of UT's admissions policy. In which as part of the study, I created three workshops to educate students and I am currently preparing to measure the same variable to evaluate if the workshops caused a change in the interest of the SCOTUS case. Currently, I am the vice chair of the College Tuition and Budget Advisory Board (CTBAC) for the School of Social Work. We are conducting a survey to measure students satisfaction with university resources and their sentiments about tuition increase. In addition to the survey, we analyze the budget of the school and provide the Dean of Social Work, Dean Zayas, our recommendations to the School of Social Work's budget.

Please describe your ability to be impartial.

As a student organizer on the 40 acres, I have had the opportunity to work with students, faculty, and staff from different disciplines and on both sides of ideological spectrum's. I have brought together students from International Socialist Organization (ISO) and Student Government to work together on issues that affected students of color on campus. Currently, I am working with the Dean of Students at UT, Senate of College Councils, and student leaders to more effectively address the needs to disenfranchised groups on campus. I believe that serving on any collaborate effort is to serve with a purpose greater than yourself. My goal is to help bridge the City of Austin with the University of Texas, and other universities in Austin. I have the experience in working with others to create a solution for all groups involved as well as others. As a part of the student on the Redistricting Commission, I would make an effort to meet with higher education institutions and their students in order to more efficiently serve all students of higher education in Austin. As I have not served on a board or been employed in any way by the City of Austin, I would serve on the Redistricting Commission with the purpose to learn and serve. I hope to learn and create a way that information about the City of Austin can be more accessible to students. This goal can be accomplished by also learning from the other commissioners and the knowledge they can offer a student, such as myself.

Please describe your appreciation for the City of Austin's diverse demographics and geography.

When I first arrived at the University of Texas at Austin, my adventures of learning was within the radius of the 40 Acres. As my time in Austin has gone by I have had the wonderful opportunity to submerge myself in a diverse community whose purpose is to serve communities with many different needs. I have been involved in working with children in North Austin who need assistance in resources regarding their mental health as well as family needs to having the pleasure of meeting the older generations of people of color in East Austin. I appreciate the City of Austin for the diversity it offers and acknowledge the geographic locations of the pockets of communities that collectively are diverse, yet individually have needs that must be understood and addressed. As well as conveying these issues to students who may find themselves in Austin to only attain a degree and illustrating the importance of bring back the resources and community efforts to their own communities outside of Austin. I want to continue to stay and work communities in Austin because of what the Austin Communities have given me. To give back to this city in a way that will give me the knowledge to fully serve it and appreciate it in the highest degree, would be truly rewarding. By being a part of the Redistricting Commission and considering these important factors when conducting the process, drawing the lines, and developing a plan can help us strengthen individual communities, as well as unifying the City of Austin.

Please provide any other information you wish to be considered during the selection of the most qualified applicants for the Commission.

GLOSSARY

- “Bundle” means to raise money as an intermediary for a council candidate by soliciting contributions on the candidate’s behalf.
- “Campaign committee” in regard to an “officer, employee or paid consultant of a campaign committee” means a candidate or a specific purpose political committee supporting or opposing a candidate.
- “Candidate” for elective office means a person whose name appeared on a ballot, or who was a declared write-in candidate, in a general or primary election. It does not mean a person who merely announced a candidacy or only filed campaign finance filings. This definition attempts to construe the term against ineligibility, avoid ambiguity and disputes of fact, and use the term in the way most commonly understood by a lay person.
- “City” means Austin.
- “City elective office” means the office of mayor and city council member.
- “City employee” means an employee on the City payroll, including a temporary or part-time employee. The term does not include an independent contractor. This definition follows the definition in Section 2-7-2 of the City Code.
- “City office,” with respect to appointment, means a municipal court judgeship (including a substitute judgeship), and membership on a commission, committee, board, task force, or other City body appointed by the mayor or the city council. This definition follows the definition of “city official” in Section 2-7-2 of the City Code, excluding those City officials who are covered separately as City employees.
- “Community college or university in the City of Austin” means a degree-granting post-secondary educational institution, accredited by a recognized accrediting agency under the Education Code, that grants one or more of the following: an associate’s degree, a bachelor’s degree, a master’s degree, or a doctorate, and that regularly conducts classes where the instructor and two or more students are physically present in a physical location within Austin’s city limits.
- “Contribution,” for purposes of calculating aggregate contributions to candidates for City elective office, includes all contributions to candidates for mayor and city council, and contributions to specific purpose political committees supporting or opposing those candidates.
- “County” refers to a county in which the City of Austin has territory.
- “County elective office” means an office that is voted on county-wide or an office that is voted on by the voters of a precinct drawn by a commissioners court.
- “Employee” with respect to a political party or campaign committee means a person who was paid a salary by the political party or campaign committee.
- “Local lobbyist” means a person required to register under Chapter 4-8 of the City Code.
- “Non-competitively bid contract” means a contract which must be awarded as provided in Section 252.043 of the Local Government Code (“lowest responsible bidder” or “best value for the municipality”).

- “Officer” with respect to the “campaign committee of a candidate for elective state, county or city office” means:
 - the campaign treasurer of a candidate for an elective state, county, or city office;
 - the campaign treasurer of a specific purpose political committee that supported or opposed a candidate for an elective state, county, or city office; or
 - an officer or director of an incorporated specific purpose political committee, incorporated for liability purposes only under Section 253.092 of the Texas Election Code, that supported or opposed a candidate for an elective state, county, or city office.
- “Officer” with respect to a political party means a precinct chair, a county chair, or a member of a party executive committee under Title 10 of the Texas Election Code.
- “Paid Consultant” with respect to work done for a political party or campaign committee means a person who was paid monetary consideration for providing legal services, accounting services, public relations services, statistical or polling services, or political or campaign-related services or advice.
- “Paid Consultant” with respect to the three year ban on paid consultancy with a council member, means having a “political or professional contract” with a council member as defined in this guidance.
- “Political or professional contract,” in the context of a contract with a council member, means a contract with a council member under which, in return for consideration, a person provided expert advice or personal services related to a council member's duties or to the council member's service as a council member, or provided advice about the conduct of campaign activities or holding office, or provided services to a council member that would be reportable on the council member's required campaign and officeholder filings under Title 15 of the Texas Election Code; Article III, §8 of the Austin City Charter; or Chapter 2-2 of the Austin City Code. This does not include a contract solely for the sale of goods.
- “Political party” means a political party that appeared on the ballot in any of the last three general elections for state and county officers.
- “Professional contract,” in the context of a contract with the City means a non-competitively bid contract other than a contract solely for the sale of goods.
- “State” means Texas.
- “State office” means an office held by a “state officer” as defined in Section 572.002 of the Government Code.
 - In the context of an appointment to a state office, “state office” means: the office of Secretary of State, an office of a state agency subject to appointment for a term of office specified by the Texas Constitution or a statute of this state; an office subject to appointment with the advice and consent of the senate; the position of executive head of a state agency; or a state office subject to election but filled by appointment because of a vacancy or because the office is newly created.
 - In the context of candidacy or election to a state office, “state office” means a seat in the legislature, an executive or judicial office filled in a statewide election; a judgeship of a court of appeals or of a district court; membership on the State Board of Education; or the position of district attorney or criminal district attorney.
- “Student” means a person actively enrolled in a community college or university on the date of the person’s application to the Commission.
